

To the Staff and Distributors of Sports Edition Magazine,

My family is unanimous in the thanks each of you deserve for your contributions to expose the athletes and scholars in the Houston and Bay Area. The media that Sports Edition Magazine provides contributes especially to those young athletes that would otherwise go unnoticed due to athletic departments unable or unwilling to help find suitable College or University programs interested in their academic or athletic abilities. I know as a marketing director for major corporations the value that print media adds in any situation. In our case, My son was among the elite baseball players at the high school level, yet never received help by the scholarship specialist within the school athletic department in finding a college interested in his education and sporting talents. Parental help is only as good as the work done from knowledge at hand. Thankfully after stories run by Sports Edition Magazine the contacts from those with interest in his talents and academic abilities have been a relief to say the least. After 48 years in the Bay Area there is finally a voice, not only for the Pro and College Athlete, but those high school students deserving a chance to advance to those exact heights, reaching the goals they all dream of. The advertising sponsorship within Sports Edition Magazine is not only on the rise, but will exceed expectations with the type of care demonstrated in youth coverage over the last 4 years that we have been reading the publication. Kudos to all of the staff, and keep the blessings bestowed upon all of you in the help you provide be first in your thoughts, as that caring feeling is what comes across on the page.
